CHAMBERLAIN'S SON ENDANGERED; BOMB EXPLODES IN HOTEL

Authorities Vision It As Demonstration Against Foreign Policies

OCCURS IN TRALEE, EIRE

Find Parts of Crude Bomb Similar to Those After English Explosions

By International News Service

TRALEE, Eire, Jan. 19.—The life of Frank Chamberlain, son of the British Prime Minister was endangered today by the explosion of a crude home-made bomb in what local authorities saw as a demonstration against the foreign policies of the British government. Chamberlain was not injured by the violent blast which shattered hundreds of windows in a hotel where he is vacationing. The explosion took place behind the hotel in this southwestern Irish town, just north of the Lake of Killarney.

Officials of the Tralee Civic Guard revealed that they had feared demonstrations against the British Prime Minister by Irish opponents of his policies through some sort of action against his son.

"The bombing," it was said by officials, "was seriously intended, and not in the nature of any prank demonstration. Three detectives have been guarding Chamberlain night and day since he arrived in Tralee on Monday."

Police lodged an immediate investigation and scoured the district for the perpetrators of the explosion. They found parts of a crude bomb similar to those discovered after several of the recent explosions in England, and continued their inquiry, working on the theories that the outrage might be the work of Irish Republican Army agitators.

The color scheme for the decorations was blue and white. A large birthday cake with candles formed the table centerpiece.

TREE TRAPPED DEER

YAKIMA, Wash.—(INS)—Six deer had state Game Protector Joe Drolet to thank for saving them from death by slow starvation.

The deer were trapped in a mile-long section between two impassable spillways in the Tieton Canal for about a week before help arrived. The canal was concrete lined and there was not even a leaf to eat. Drolet bridged a spillway with planks and herded the animals five miles to the intake, where they climbed out.

PASSING OF EARLE REGIME IS END OF POLITICAL ERA

Last Pay Day of Democratic Administration Fell On Friday, the 13th

OTHER CAPITOL GOSSIP

(By International News Service)

HARRISBURG, Jan. 19.—The passing of the Earle administration marks the end of a political era, the first "Little New Deal" state government in Commonwealth history. Unlike the New Deal of the national scene it failed to weather the storm of four eventful years.

Whether the incoming Republican regime will revert to "Old Deal" policies of its predecessor G. O. P. administrations or adopt some of the "New Deal" tenets of the outgoing administration remains yet to be seen. Tremendous problems of administration and human welfare confront the new regime as it takes over the State government.

The last pay day under the State Democratic administration fell on Friday the thirteenth of January. . . of significance or just a coincidence, depending on the way you look at it.

Judge James is the second Lieutenant-Governor to rise to the Governorship. . . He served as Lieutenant-Governor from 1927 to 1931 under Governor John S. Fisher. . . The only other Lieutenant-Governor to become Chief Executive was William Freamer Johnston. . . He succeeded through the resignation of Gov. Francis R. Shunk in 1848. . . Shunk died 11 days after he resigned. . . Johnston took the oath of office six days later. . . Thus for seventeen days Pennsylvania was without a Governor.

Pennsylvania is apparently not slated for a Federal School of Aviation. . . The recent announcement of President Roosevelt of plans to train 20,000 college students annually as civilian pilots excited considerable interest among Pennsylvania youths. . . It is understood, however, that eight non-Pennsylvania colleges have been chosen: Purdue, Washington State, Alabama, Indiana, Minnesota, Texas A. & M., Georgia, and Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

The meritorious service medal received by Lieutenant-Colonel C. M. Wilhelm, Deputy Commissioner of the Pennsylvania Motor Police, is the second citation the veteran police officer has received for outstanding endeavor. . . During the administration of Gov. John S. Fisher, Colonel Wilhelm, then deputy commissioner of the old state police, received the state police medal of honor for meritorious service. He is the only man now in service who started with the state police force when it was organized in 1905.

Anything For A Ride

By "The Stroller"
A "sleigh-trailer" is the latest "contraption" seen on the streets of Edgely. Evidently very anxious to secure a sleigh ride, and being minus a horse, a sleigh was hooked onto the back of an automobile, and the merry jaunt continued.

Among the many sights seen in that vicinity since the arrival of the white coating of snow was that of a woman who pulled a small child a short distance. And apparently very anxious for a ride on a sled herself the woman thrice sat on the small sled, the child vainly attempting to give the adult the thrill of whirling over the snow-covered highway. After a last futile attempt, the child again took its place on the sled and the two hurried off home.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

The Hopkins Ballyhoo

Washington, Jan. 18.
IF the interesting effort to build Mr. Harry Hopkins, newly appointed Secretary of Commerce, up into a solid and reassuring figure in whom business men will confide and in whose behalf his influence will be benevolently exerted—if that effort has begun to bog down, it is not the fault of the Administration propagandists.

CERTAINLY they have done their best. The basic cause of the failure can be traced back to that trenchant, ancient but still appallingly accurate saying, to wit, that "you cannot make a silk purse out of a sow's ear." While it is true that an extraordinary concentration of the New Deal political and public-

$100,000 Blaze at Bethlehem

Bethlehem, Jan. 19.—Causing damage estimated at $100,000, fire of undetermined origin today destroyed the Fritch Milling Company flour mill, one of the largest in the Lehigh Valley.

Before firemen gained control, the flames consumed the half-block-long building and spread across the street to the frame residence of Michael Grum, and a garage owned by the flour company.

At the height of the blaze, 14 persons fled in scanty attire from the Keystone Hotel, adjoining the mill property. Firemen, however, kept the flames from igniting the hotel building.

Fire Drives 200 Into Cold

Philadelphia, Jan. 19.—Two hundred occupants of surrounding homes were driven into the snow early today, when a three-alarm fire destroyed the interior of a florist supplies manufacturing plant in the Frankford section of the city.

Driven by a high wind, 100-foot flames scorched the backs of half a dozen dwellings near the scene, as firemen battled nearly two hours against a roaring inferno. Flames in the factory were fed by artificial wreaths, baskets and other inflammable material.

Fire officials said that except for melting of the snow on the nearby homes, the dwellings would have been consumed by fire before water could have been placed on them to protect them.

POSTAL SAVINGS ISSUED HERE ADVANCE IN 1938

Postal Receipts Including Stamps, Cards, Etc., Advances $701.44 for '38

MONEY ORDERS DROP

Postal savings deposit issues at the Bristol post office for the year 1938 show a goodly advance over the total for the preceding year.

For 1938 the amount was $57,595, as against $52,994 for 1937.

Seven hundred and one dollars and forty-four cents was the advance in postal receipts for 1938 over 1937. The total received from customers at Bristol post office during 1938 for stamps, envelopes, postal cards, etc., was $54,878.38, as compared to $54,176.94 during 1937.

The number of money orders issued in the year just ended was 38,291, and the value was listed at $358,983.92, as against 38,794 orders valued at $361,959.91 for 1937. The drop in this department, according to Postmaster Joseph P. Duffy, is attributable to the lowering of cost of automobile driver's licenses, the cost dropping from $2 to $1, and a large number of money orders issued being for such here.

The total of letters put through the cancelling machine in 1937 was somewhat higher than in 1938. The former year's cancellations were 2,178,180, as compared to 2,068,567 for 1938.

James Begins Sweep Of State Posts Today

By Raymond Wilcox

(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)
HARRISBURG, Jan. 19.—(INS)—Slowly, but steadily and inexorably, the James Administration today began a sweep of State posts, replacing Democratic holdovers of the Earle Administration with Republican appointees. Forty-five thousand jobs are expected to change hands.

Setting the pace was the induction into office of 14 of Governor James' 16 Cabinet appointees. All immediately took over their departments with orders from Governor James to rigidly inspect payrolls for possible job slashes. Governor James' appointees for Secretary of Revenue and Motor Police Commissioner—William J. Hamilton and Major Lynn G. Adams, respectively—will receive a Senate hearing Monday at which Democratic Senators will be given the opportunity to interrogate them.

Varied duties and problems incidental to the setting up of a new administration faced Gov. Arthur H. James, Pennsylvania's new chief executive, as the Republican Administration swept into action.

THE FIVE-MINUTE LOOK

It is interesting that a professor of art and archeology should say: "If you are in a hurry and want to enjoy something for five minutes, look at a painting, or a statue, but if you have an indeterminate period on your hands, read a book. Professor Mather of Princeton does it. He figures that enjoyment of a painting ceases after five minutes of inspection, while opera and the stage can hold attention for two hours and a half; music for three hours, with intermissions; architecture for a half-hour and literature for an indeterminate period.

Of course, no book worth reading can be gone through in five minutes; only a very rapid reader could finish one of normal length in two hours and a half or three hours, and he would probably skim quite a bit. There are pictures and statues before which observers linger, or to which they pay repeated visits totaling a good many more hours than it takes to read a book.

Another way to measure this absorption of beauty is to ask how long great pictures, statues and buildings live. Leonardo da Vinci, for whom Mr. Mather has special admiration, painted some pictures many people recall more frequently and with more enjoyment than any book they could name. Some find a perennial interest in some architectural detail like the fan vaulting of a great cathedral. Certainly the great Greek temples have not been dismissed with a half-hour glance, and it would take a lively imagination to exhaust all the beauty of the Empire State Building and still have time to eat during a lunch hour.

It takes a mighty good writer to live as long and delight as many people as Beethoven and Brahms, Valsquez, Hals and Rembrandt, Michaelangelo and Sir Christopher Wren.

LIBRARY DEMOCRACY

At the midwinter conference of the American Library Association in Chicago, it was reported that recent pressure on public libraries by special groups to censor book purchases is being resisted by librarians throughout the length and breadth of the country, as violating the spirit of the Bill of Rights.

The dispatch reads that "with human freedom being curtailed on many fronts, trustees of libraries are pondering the demands of some pressure groups which ask that this volume or that be omitted from the shelves of public libraries." Other strong requests have come into library offices to refuse meeting places in libraries for various organizations and to limit book purchases to those books which in the opinion of the particular group "are good for people to read."

The issue is simple, direct. Have we or have we not learned a lesson from Germany and Russia? Whom shall we delegate to select these books which "are good for people to read?" Or should we just let them read? Isn't the latter the American way?

In certain respects, conditions have improved since the previous dark ages. The modern man wears a snappier uniform.

"The ambition of some Russians seems to be to work less and receive more pay," complains the Moscow Pravda. It will amaze the commissars to learn they haven't stamped out human nature.

far too clearly to permit the picture to be blurred by propaganda or the actual facts to be hidden from the people as a whole.

OUTSTANDING among these is that Mr. Hopkins was not taken from the WPA and put into the Cabinet as a deserved promotion, but to get him out of a job which he had badly botched and into a place where he would be out of the line of fire. That is the plain truth and there isn't an informed man in Washington who does not know it. As for the botching, the evidence—some of it provided by Mr. Hopkins himself—is overwhelming and convincing. As he leaves, Congress prepares to dismantle and revamp the whole relief setup. It does this after the political saturation of the WPA has been disclosed by a Senate committee, and partially admitted by Mr. Hopkins, after it has been denounced by both Democrats and Republicans, and after public sentiment has reached the limit of tolerance.

THE JOB of forming a new system of relief administration, about to be tackled by Congress, is not recommended either by the President or Mr. Hopkins. On the contrary, neither has as yet made the slightest "constructive suggestion," and until Mr. Hopkins admitted certain things on the stand, including his own mistaken political activities, the attitude of both had been that WPA was without a flaw and that all charges were partisan and unfounded. The situation as it exists today, with Mr. Hopkins taken out as a precaution against attack; his aide, Mr. Aubrey Williams, sidetracked for similar reasons and the whole structure itself about to be made over, is about as complete an indictment as could be framed.

UNDER the circumstances, to sing the praises of Mr. Hopkins is to be ridiculous. However, that does not deter the Administration ministers, who are thoroughly aware that in saving Mr. Hopkins' face they also save the President's. The tune upon which they now harp is that Mr. Hopkins was really urged for Secretary of Commerce by big business leaders who believe in him. This is simply not true. There were no detached business leaders who urged his selection or wanted it. The idea of making him Secretary of Commerce originated in no business mind, but was evolved by the slick palace politicians, of whom he is one, as a way out of the WPA jam which made his retention there impossible.

THE position he now occupies is the least important of all Cabinet posts—far less important, of course, than that of WPA Administrator which he relinquishes. But to justify the advance notices tentative plans have been formed to have Mr. Hopkins expand into a sort of super-labor peacemaker and otherwise avoid sinking into what might prove humiliating obscurity. They will not amount to much. Actually, Mr. Hopkins is the complete "Yes man," the most subservient whom the President has in Washington, which may account for the high favor in which he holds him.

IT has taken an Administration drive of major proportions to get him safely into the new job where his power is curtailed, his importance diminished and his usefulness to the opposition as a target decreased. But neither the strained tributes of the business stooges of the so-called Advisory Council, the "great American" adjectives of his jobholding colleagues nor the en-columns of his gifted chief can make of him a public official whom the harried businessman will trust or love. In the graphic words of an old-time politician, no businessman not wholly foolish "would ever go to sleep with his finger in Harry's mouth."

GRAND

Mention the term "Navy picture" and most movie-goers immediately think of super-dreadnoughts heaving in the ocean swells to the strains of "Anchors Aweigh." They think of gold braid and hallowed tradition and the splendid young men of the Naval Academy.

All this is very fine; it is good dramatic material. But it is probably neither as fine nor as dramatic as the great story out of which 20th Century-Fox has fashioned "Submarine Patrol." Because "Submarine Patrol," while based on the most heroic chapter in the whole history of naval warfare, is no more a typical "Navy picture" than "Alexander's Ragtime Band" was a typical musical.

It is Director John Ford who says so, the man who made "The Informer," "Wee Willie Winkie" and "The Hurricane," and who climaxes his Award-winning career with this new picture, which will open tonight at the Grand Theatre.

SECOND-HALF RACE OPENS IN BASKETBALL LEAGUE

The second-half race of the Bristol Basketball League will open for the other four teams of the circuit tonight on the Italian Mutual Aid floor as the Falls Alumni five clashes with the Hibernians and the Celtics meet the Rohm & Haas quintet.

Both of these tilts are expected to be close from start to finish. The Hibernians were runners-up in the first half chase, while DeKris's team finished in a deadlock for fourth place. However, the Falls boys had the cards stacked against them and lost several games by close margins.

Many of the fans of the local loop had picked the orange and black clan to finish on top in the initial half of the circuit, but the alumni boys were disappointing. They will attempt to redeem themselves by winning the second half. The Hibs and Falls expect to start their regular line-up in the battle.

One of the most improved teams in the circuit, the Rohm & Haas five, will show the fans their second-half array of talent. This club has now won three straight since the acquisition of Johnny Cole, and are destined to go places in the second half.

"Jimmy" Lake, one of the mainstays of the Celts, will be at his regular post, and is hoping for one of his "on" nights to give the chemical workers a run for their money.

Opening tap-off takes place at eight o'clock sharp.

TO REDISTRIBUTE 50,000 RABBITS IN PENNSYLVANIA

Pennsylvania's 600,000-odd rabbit hunters will welcome the news that there should be plenty of rabbits on their favorite hunting grounds by the time they are ready to shoulder their guns and go after the cottontails.

The National Youth Administration youth workers in five NYA shops in the State are now completing an order for 10,000 traps for the Pennsylvania State Game Commission, according to Walter S. Cowing, State youth director. These traps will be used in effecting a redistribution of the State's rabbit population.

Within the next two months, traps will be placed by Game Commission workers and NYA youth in areas where Bre'r Rabbit is most abundant, and the bunnies will be released in open hunting sections where there is a scarcity.

It is expected that over 50,000 of the small furry creatures will be captured and redistributed. This is the first year this method has been used and is being done as an economic measure.

The Game Commission continues to import rabbits from mid-western States for the benefit of Pennsylvania hunters, and the trapped rabbits augment this supply.

Approximately 2,000 traps are being completed in each of the following NYA shops: Pittsburgh, Philadelphia, Erie, Philadelphia, and Scranton.

EDGELEY CLUB MEMBERS URGE FEEDING OF GAME

EDGELEY, Jan. 19.—The regular meeting of Edgely Rod and Gun Club was held Monday evening in the fire house with the new president, Harry Pittman, presiding.

It was deemed necessary by the members to provide food for the game, during the periods when the ground is snow-bound or frozen. A feeding program was decided upon, and put in charge of the game committee.

The club voted to offer prizes of $5 each for the heaviest bass and pike caught in public waters in Bucks county by a club member, in the 1939 season.

The club also decided to attempt the formation of a farm-game project such as are meeting with enthusiastic support in neighboring counties.

The next meeting, February 20th, is to be an open meeting with entertainment, and refreshments being served.

STEINKE VICTORIOUS OVER MCCOY AT ARENA

TRENTON, N. J., Jan. 19.—Hans Steinke, the German Oak, won the feature wrestling match at the Arena last night, when his opponent, Bibber McCoy, Boston strongboy, was unable to continue after the second fall.

Steinke, strictly a scientific grappler, was hard pressed to cope with the roughhouse tactics employed by McCoy. The latter won the first fall after 15 minutes, when he pinned the towering German with a body press. During the time the Boston grappler abused Steinke no end with a stinging forearm.

The German matched McCoy at his own game, however, following the intermission, and took the second fall after 10 minutes, when he sent the Bostonian hurtling from the ring with a well-directed blow to the chin. This blow proved fatal for McCoy, for he failed to put in an appearance as the going sounded to resume.

Richard (Bull) Martin, Trenton's pudgy grappler, won the semi-windup in 12 minutes from Jim Wright, Texas rowdy, who substituted for Vic Christy. Martin slugged his opponent into submission and fell on him to take the fall.

Sammy (One-Man Riot) Cohen won the fourth match when he slugged Pat Corrigan, popular Irishman, to the canvas in 25 seconds. Corrigan never had a chance as the Bronx Hebrew rained blow after blow on his chin.

Pete Peterson, popular Dane, won the third match by tossing John Gudi, chunky Pole, to the mat in 12 minutes. Jim Wright battled to a 30-minute draw with Lord Albert Mills, towering Canadian, in the second bout. Angelo Leone, rowdy Italian, won the opener when he pinned Whisker Wells after 19 minutes.

NEW FACES IN POLITICS

Thomas E. Martin
Congressman-Elect from Iowa

IOWA CITY, Ia., Jan. 5.—(INS)—Rep. Thomas E. Martin, new Republican Congressman from Iowa's first district, became known as a "crusading mayor" when he served as head of this city's government, but it is a title he particularly dislikes.

To believe in good government and economy does not make a man a "crusader," Rep. Martin contends. Regardless of the title, however, Iowa City liked his "reform" administration, and he had a hard time refusing the nomination for a second term.

He announced he was not a candidate for re-election and his name did not appear on the primary ballot. Enough persons wrote in his name, however, to give him the nomination. He refused it again.

Martin, who is in his early forties but looks even younger, won the congressional seat formerly occupied by Rep. Edward C. Elcher (D) of Washington, Ia., who did not seek re-election.

The congressman's home city is traditionally Democratic, and he is the only Republican who ever carried all five of its wards. The district, however, was generally Republican until Rep. Elcher was elected.

Chief "reforms" inaugurated by Martin as mayor were a big reduction in the city budget, and tighter rules and earlier closing for the beer parlors. He has a daughter, Brownlee, 15, and a son, Richard, 17.

Fight Through Fog and Snow

Hendaye, France, Jan. 19.—Fighting through fog and deep snow, General Franco's insurgents hammered at the government defenses today in a determined effort to sever one of the Loyalists' two railroad links with France.

Advices from Lerida said Franco's legions were advancing along the northern part of the main road running from Seo de Urgel in the eastern Pyrenees toward Barcelona.

It was claimed the insurgent advance in the Catalan front is continuing on an average of four miles daily, and that 2,000 more government soldiers have been taken prisoners in the past 24 hours.
